

Worth[®]

31 Nights of Wine

Congratulations—you've made it through another year. Now it's time to drink the good stuff. Here are Worth's recommendations for December drinking.

Richard Bradley

W

Whether you spend most of your December evenings going out or staying in, the end of the year is an excellent time to drink some of 2022's finest releases. From South Africa to South America, Australia to Italy, and France to Napa Valley to New York's Long Island, here are 31 wines to help you celebrate 2022—and look forward to all the new wine that 2023 will bring.

3. Gentleman Farmer 2021 Rosé

Price: $37

Joe Wolosz and Jeff Durham launched Gentleman Farmer wines in 2005, becoming a relative scarcity in Napa Valley: gay partners, both personally and professionally, in the wine world. (The pair were married in 2016.) Gentleman Farmer makes a small amount—about 1,000 cases—of cabernet sauvignon, a red blend, and chardonnay, but this rosé is an easy entry point for their wines. Made from 90 percent pinot noir, it's a bright, red grapefruit color with bold flavors of strawberry and cherry.